Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Care and Feeding of Infants and Children: A Textbook for Trained Nurses In writing a text-book for nurses, on the care and feeding of infants and children, I have tried to make it practical and at the same time sufficiently comprehensive to meet the increasing demand for a broader education along the line of preventive medicine. The anatomy and physiology have been considered only in so far as they relate directly to the subject of child welfare. The chapters on feeding are the result not only of a large personal experience but also of a study of the work of the leading pediatricists, both in this country and in Europe. Although the discussion of the pathological conditions common to infants and children has of necessity to be brief, in a work of this kind, I have endeavored to give the nurse the sort of information most useful to her, and of the greatest benefit to the public. I am greatly indebted to Dr. Josephine Heminway Kenyon, of the Teachers College of Columbia University, and to Miss Ida M.Cannon, Chief of the Department of Social Service, Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, for many valuable suggestions made by them in reviewing the manuscript. I wish also to express my appreciation to Dr. Wilson G. Smillie, of the Department of Hygiene, Harvard Medical School, for several important points in the chapter on milk, and to Dr. Bronson brothers, who helped me to revise the manuscript.
